Rising medical costs and healthcare reform have increased the need for careful review and management of medical resources. The unique and vital role of the utilization review (UR) nurse serves this need. Like many nurses, you may be unfamiliar with the nurse's role in UR. Although the UR concept isn't new, the nature of the role and demands on utilization reviewers have [...]

Patient participation is an important basis for nursing care and medical treatment and is a legal right in many Western countries. Studies have established that patients consider participation to be both obvious and important, but there are also findings showing the opposite and patients often prefer a passive recipient role. Knowledge of what may influence patients' participation is thus of ...
